INTRODUCTION

The information presented in this book updates A Preliminary Guide to Government Agency Programs of Interest to Language Minority Groups published by the Clearinghouse in 1978. Changes resulting from 1978 and 1979 legislation, particularly the Elementary and Secondary Education Act (ESEA) Amendments of 1978, P.L. 95-561, have been included. It was not possible to publish information on all the regulations which will follow the amended ESEA, because many had not been issued in final form when this guide went to press. In particular, new regulations will be issued during late 1979 and early 1980 which will affect the Indian Education Act, the Follow Through Program, and several titles within ESEA, including Title I, Title VII, and the Emergency School Assistance Act. When dealing with these programs, the reader should check the Federal Register, or with the agency itself, to determine if new regulations have been issued.

The information published here was gathered primarily from federal catalogs of domestic assistance, such as the Guide to OE-Administered Programs, Fiscal Year 1978, available from the Government Printing Office. Updated versions are printed each year. Other sources include the 1978 Federal Funding Guide for Elementary and Secondary Education, compiled by the Education Funding Research Council. Information on new funding levels and recent regulations was gathered by telephone and mail. Agencies varied in the amount of information they could supply on future funding levels. All available materials have been included; however, federal support programs can change rapidly. This guide is intended for general use and as a tool for initial investigation.

Organizations seeking federal support for their activities should contact the government agencies from which they are seeking support to discuss the nature of their projects and their acceptability to the funding program. Early contact with federal funding officers can help ensure that proposals meet the requirements of the agencies.

Entries have been arranged according to administering agency and contain the following information: contact name and address, name of administering agency, authorizing legislation, eligible applicants, eligible population, intent of funds, regulations, form of assistance, and appropriation. The information included under "eligible population" is in the form of keywords conforming to the Thesaurus of ERIC Descriptors. For example, the term "Americans" has been used to indicate the general public; the phrase "American Indian children" has been indicated by the use of two terms, "American Indians" and "Children." The abbreviation FP for "Federal Programs" is an internal Clearinghouse descriptor designed to distinguish this material in the computerized database.

Because abbreviated titles are frequently used in funding information, a list of acronyms is provided.

The information compiled in this publication is paralleled by a more detailed record of each organization found in NCBE's database. Periodic updates will be made with regular revisions of the document.

The National Clearinghouse for Bilingual Education gratefully acknowledges the efforts of all those who collaborated. Users are encouraged to submit suggestions for future editions of this publication.
